The event was attended by some 300 people, among them representatives of the U.S. Administration, ambassadors and other members of the foreign diplomatic corps, military attachés and other highranking military officials, Colorado National Guard representatives, think-tank and NGO representatives, cultural liaisons, businessmen, the media as well as members of the Slovenian community in the greater Washington, DC, area. sung by Nuška Zakrajšek, the guests were welcomed by the ambassador, Dr. Cerar, who stressed that in declaring its independence on June 25, 1991, Slovenia dedicated itself to following the path to democracy, the rule of law, human rights, and free-market economy, and to becoming a proactive member of the international community. He thanked the U.S. for its support and a partner-relationship on this pathway and also recognized the endeavors of Slovenian community in the U.S.

On behalf of the State Secretary of State John Kerry, the Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Bureau of Political-Military Affairs Todd C. Chapman congratulated the people of Slovenia on the occasion of the Statehood Day. democracy. He also stressed the importance of the military partnership and emphasized the efforts to deepen the collaboration in the economic and academic sector.

Attending the reception was the retired American Senator of Slovenian heritage, Tom Harkin, to whom Ambassador Dr. Cerar conveyed a letter from the Slovenian President, Borut Pahor, thanking him for his service in enhancing the Slovenian-U.S. friendship. At the same time, Defense Attaché, Colonel Ivan Mikuž, presented to Command Sergeant Major Michael R. Lawrence of the National Guard of Colorado a Medal for the International Cooperation of the IV level, for his support of the development, establishment, placement and qualification of the professional Non-Commissioned Officer corps of the Slovenian Armed Forces.

At the end of the program, the guests were also addressed by the internationally acclaimed Slovenian writer Evald Flisar, President of PEN Slovenia.

On the occasion, Ambassador Dr. Cerar opened -- in the artist's presence -- an exhibition of works by the Slovenian-born American painter Joseph Vodlan. Vodlan began his studies at the Art Academy in Linz, Austria, in 1958, and graduated with honors in 1963. After he obtained his degree from the academy, he moved to the U.S. In Cleveland, Ohio, he met the sculptor, France Gorše. Together with the painter Miro Zupančič, the three artists founded the art club Lok, which existed until 1970. Afterwards, Vodlan was engaged for several years in graphic art design with prominent American companies. Throughout the 1970s, he longed for a more intensive personal involvement with art and again focused on painting. The exhibition displayed at the embassy presents his lifetime work, featuring the range of styles and artistic expression in the form of paintings and sculptures. The exhibition remains on display at the embassy through September 11. The gallery is open to the visitors Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
