He stressed that Slovenia has shown to be a strong and reliable member of the transatlantic community and has since 1991 built a close Minister Žmavc and SNPJ President Joe Evanish.

From June 2 to 13, Minister for Slovenians Abroad Gorazd Žmavc visited the Slovenian communities in Canada and the U.S. After visiting Toronto, Calgary and Vancouver, he started his U.S. trip in Chicago on June 9. First he met with the representatives of the Slovenian Union of America, which was founded in 1926 as the Slovenian Women's Union of America. The original purpose of the society was to advocate for the rights of Slovenian women in the U.S., however, nowadays the society preserves the traditions, language, and culture of their ancestors, also by publishing a monthly magazine called Zarja and by curating a small museum dedicated to Slovenian emigration to the area.

The next stop the minister made was at the headquarters of the Carniolian-Slovenian Catholic Union (KSKJ), an insurance and savings institution, which was established in 1894. A quarter of its 30,000 members have Slovenian roots, and the KSKJ has preserved activities helping promote Slovenian culture. The minister concluded the first day of his U.S. trip at a ceremony of the Slovenian Cultural/Catholic Center in Lemont, marking the 25th anniversary of Slovenian independence. At the event, Slovenian Honorary Consul in Chicago, Mr. Janez Vidmar, remembered the crucial weeks in 1991 when the local Slovenian community was convincing the U.S. public and politics of the legitimacy of Slovenia's decision for independence.

After Chicago, the minister made a stop in Pittsburgh, where he was hosted by Honorary Consul Petra Mitchell. Minister Žmavc visited the University of Pittsburgh and the Slovene National Benefit Society (Slovenska narodna

While in Pennsylvania, the minister also attended a celebration marking the 25th anniversary of Slovenian statehood in Imperial, when the reception was jointly hosted by Honorary Consul Petra Mitchell and Consul General Andrej Rode.

In Cleveland, the minister visited the premises of the Consulate General of the Republic of Slovenia, the sole foreign diplomatic office in the State of Ohio. He also visited the Slovenian Museum and Archives and Slovenian Genealogy Society International, both located on the premises of the Slovenian National Home on St. Clair Avenue, before attending the 25th anniversary of Slovenian independence celebration in the Rotunda of Cleveland City Hall. The next day, Minister Žmavc visited the Slovenian churches of St. Vitus and St. Mary, Slovenian retirement home and National Cleveland-Style Polka Hall of Fame and Museum in Euclid as well as met with representatives of some other Cleveland-based Slovenian organizations.

IN MEMORIAM

George Voinovich

George Voinovich, the former U.S. senator of Slovenian descent, passed away at the age 79 on Saturday, June 11, a day after his address at the ceremony in Cleveland City Hall, which marked the 25th anniversary of Slovenia's independence. As a compassionate and responsible leader he served as a mayor of Cleveland, governor of Ohio and 12 years as a federal senator.

Senator Voinovich selflessly devoted his life for the residents of his beloved home town, Cleveland, and the people of Ohio. He performed his role with great competence, enthusiasm and dignity. His tireless efforts to change the world for the better remain an inspiration to millions not only in the United States, but also in Slovenia. As a son of a Slovenian mother he was immensely proud of his heritage and helped the Slovenian nation with honor and distinction in most difficult and defining times. Senator Voinovich supported Slovenia's aspirations and dreams since the very first years of country's sovereignty. He passionately advocated for the recognition of its independence in the U.S. Congress and actively supported the country's accession to NATO a decade later.

He was committed to the enhancement of friendship between the two countries and peoples and spared no effort in this regard. For his immense contribution he received in 2004 the Golden Order for Services, awarded by the President of Slovenia. He will be remembered for many of his leadership strengths, but mostly as a great friend of Slovenia. He will be truly missed and his endeavors

Exhibition: Jewish Soldiers on the Isonzo Front at the Embassy

The exhibition, entitled “Forgive Us, Forgive Us, Oh You, the Dead”, was on view at the Embassy of Slovenia from May 1 to May 17. The display, curated by Petra Svoljšak and Renato Podbersič, honored Jewish soldiers in the Austro-Hungarian army who fell on the Isonzo Front (Soška fronta) of WWI in the territory of present-day Slovenia. The exhibition was presented in cooperation with the Maribor synagogue, which serves as a cultural center of Jewish heritage in Slovenia.

A total of around 300,000 Jewish soldiers participated in the war and estimates put the number of Jewish soldiers who lost their lives during WWI at around 40,000. The exhibition is based on historical research of documents, photos and existing literature and also interviews with people who knew about Jews who fought on the side of the Austrian army in WWI.
