Dr. Božo Cerar, Slovenia's ambassador to the U.S., was the keynote presenter at the opening of the exhibit "Forgive Us, Forgive Us, Oh You, the Dead" at the Slovenian Museum and Archives on St. Clair Ave. in Cleveland on September 18. The exhibition is dedicated to Jewish soldiers who served in the Austro-Hungarian army on the Soča / Isonzo front in World War I. In his speech, the ambassador paid recognition to the soldiers who fell in WWI, called for justice for all WWII and post-WWII victims and all the victims of the totalitarian regimes in the 20th century.

The tri-lingual exhibition (in Slovenian, English, and Hebrew) is accompanied by rich graphic material and historical documents, and is one of the major contributions to contemporary research of the history of Slovenia and adjacent territories during WWI. The exhibition was organized in cooperation with the Maribor
